Overview

Middle Way School (MWS) is pioneering a new model of education based on the best in education research and enhanced by the wisdom and compassion of Buddhist traditions. Master teachers with a deep understanding of childhood development are the pillars of this education. Assistant teachers work with lead teachers at MWS to carry out their morning instructional blocks as well as facilitate a harmonious and safe environment for snack and recess. Assistant teachers also support students' development in all areas including social-emotional, physical, and academic, and work with the Dharma Education Liaison to integrate Buddhist wisdom and practice into the classroom.

MWS school culture relies on daily meditation and ample professional support.
